INTRODUCTION

THE FIFTH PILLAR started by like-minded people and was inspired by the doctrine of 'COMMON PEOPLE' as the Fifth Pillar of Indian democracy.

The organization works in the area of skill development, entrepreneurship, and livelihoods promotion, majorly in the domain of women empowerment, socially and educationally backward groups.

The Fifth Pillar centers on aligning efforts with the Sustainable Development Goals, promoting a holistic approach for lasting global impact.

In the vibrant tapestry of Indian democracy, where the traditional pillars of Legislature, Executive, and Judiciary stand tall, there emerges an unconventional force – an unwritten pillar, so to speak – that carries the aspirations and strength of the common people. Aptly named "The Fifth Pillar," this metaphorical foundation is not entrenched in legal doctrines but thrives on the spirit of empowerment and community engagement.

Founded in 2017 by a group of like-minded individuals, "The Fifth Pillar" draws inspiration from the fundamental doctrine of 'COMMON PEOPLE' as the true force shaping the destiny of the Indian democracy. Breaking away from conventional norms, this organization embraces the belief that the people themselves constitute an essential and often underestimated pillar within the democratic structure.

At its core, The Fifth Pillar focuses on key areas that resonate with the daily lives of ordinary citizens – skill development, entrepreneurship, livelihoods promotion, education, and health. These domains are not merely chosen for their significance but reflect a commitment to addressing the holistic needs of individuals, especially those from socially and educationally backward groups.
